

Celebrate the Season at NHG

The season for celebrating is here! In addition to our fresh trees, greenery, and seasonal botanicals, we have unique workshops available for those craving the satisfaction of crafting their own custom gifts and decorations.

A feature each December is our fresh wreath building workshop: The registration fee covers all of your materials, including a 16" wreath form, mixed greenery, pinecones, and accents. Wire will be provided, but please bring gloves and snips from home (or plan to purchase some in the store before we begin). Bring your favorite ribbon and we'll share decorator secrets on creating the perfect bow to crown your creation! See inside for more hands-on activities to enjoy in the comfort of our indoor classroom this winter. From terrarium ornaments to vertical air plant gardens and watercolor to pottery, plan to bring a friend or loved one—or a whole group of them!—and attend one of these fun, memorable workshops.

Winter Vegetable Checklist

Onions & Leeks

Plant onion slips in January. They are ready to harvest when the temperatures rise, usually in May. Leeks are a member of the onion family, but they do not form bulbs. Slips arrive in early January. Grow them similarly to the way you would onions.

January

Tomatoes

A mistake many gardeners make when growing tomatoes in DFW is starting too late! If you plan to start from seed, you should begin in January.

Transplants go in the ground late February to mid-March in order to get them established and bushy before the optimum temperature time frame for fruit set, which is typically in April through early May.

February

Asparagus

Plant crowns in February. This perennial crop is an investment of time and space, but well worth the reward.

Potatoes

Plant seed potatoes in February into rich, well drained soil. Dusting sulfur helps to protect from fungal growth.

Rhubarb

While it requires extra care due to our hot summers, it's well worth the effort: the edible stalks add a delicious, fruity flavor that's truly unique.

Horseradish

An easy crop to grow. The hot, zesty punch of flavor fresh from the garden is unbeatable.

Hellebore Haven By Sandi Holmes-Schwedler, TMCNP, NHG Senior Buyer

Those of us who live through our gardens know how bittersweet it can be to see the lush green growth of summer disappear during the cold months of winter. Hellebores, however, offer a graceful solution: they're easy-to-grow evergreen perennials that bloom when most other plants are sleeping. Available in a glorious array of colors and often sporting unique specks, striations and patterns in their blooms, hellebores bring both interest and structure to shady garden spaces. Most hellebores reach 12"-24" in bloom, so they're perfect for the perennial border or that special focal container garden. They're tough plants that can tolerate plenty of sun in winter; however, they'll need afternoon shade in hot summer months. We'll have quite a selection of varieties in stock now through early spring, with each variety having a unique bloom period now through spring. Hellebores are the perfect winter garden companion to plant with another winter blooming favorite, Camellias. Visit us this season for the exciting selection of both of these cool season beauties and enjoy them in your garden for years to come.
